The convergence of the objectives between the ANVPAH and VSSP and the France-UNESCO cooperation agreement leads to an active collaboration, in particular in Mali and in India.

The theme of priority intervention in Mali is the architecture of earth. For a better knowledge of this heritage, works of inventory are led within the framework of the project River - Niger carried by the UNESCO. The partnership also aims at raising awareness among communities and local institutions on the need to protect the heritage of earth.

In India, the local authorities of the ANVPAH and VSSP give their know-how regarding heritage and urban development. These exchanges of expertise favor the implementation of decentralized cooperations.
